STORY

The story of VIXEN started way back in 1980/1981, when guitarist Jan Kuehnemund formed her first band and called it VIXEN. Jan was born on November 11, 1961 in St. Paul, Minnesota. She started out from Minnesota and played with her band all around the USA and finally worked their way to Los Angeles. On their way touring across the country, Jan saw a great vocalist playing at a club in Los Angeles and this vocalist was Janet Gardner. Janet was born on March 17, 1962 in Juneau, Alaska. The voice was perfect for VIXEN and so Jan 'stole' Janet for her band. In 1984 the band got a chance to play in a real movie. The movie was called "Hardbodies" and it's about making love at a beach and having parties all day. VIXEN plays on those parties and they do six tracks for the movie. The songs are: "Computer Madness" (Jan Kuehnemund), "Maria" (Tamara Ivanov), "Be with me" (Gail Erickson & Keith Krupp), "Mr. Cool" (Gail Erickson), "Give it a chance" (Janet Gardner & Jan Kuehnemund) and "Runnin'" (Cindy Boetticher). The line-up of the band in the movie is: Jan Kuehnemund (lead guitar), Janet Gardner (vocals), Tamara Ivanov (rhythm guitar), Pia Koko (bass) and Laurie Hedlund on drums. In time the band went through some personal changes to get the right ingredients for VIXEN. And it was only a few months later, when they saw a band called MADAM X with a great female drummer, named Roxy Petrucci (her sister Maxime played guitar in MADAM X, by the way). MADAM X did one LP ("We reserve the right") and one single ("High in High School"/"Metal in my veins"), both produced by Rick Derringer. After hearing MADAM X were splitting up, VIXEN sent a demo tape to Roxy Petrucci, who was born on March 17, 1962 in Rochester, Michigan. She did a few jam sessions with the band and very shortly became the new drummer of VIXEN. The band (now a four-piece with Jan, Janet, Roxy on bass, Steve Vai's wife, Pia Koko) got picked up by Left Bank Management and they made a three-track demo tape (tracks: "Leave me alone", "Waiting for you" and "You oughta know by now"). This demo was sent to EMI, who couldn't believe they were girls and invited them for a showcase. From that day on, EMI was behind them and signed the band immediately for a record deal. In the meantime, Pia Koko got replaced by new bass player Share Pedersen, who was born on March 21, 1963 in Glencoe, Minnesota. Share had been discovered by Janet after playing in a small club in Hollywood. In 1988 VIXEN released their self-titled album and the first single "Edge of a broken heart" was written by Richard Marx. The record was produced and arranged by Marx and further by David Cole, Rick Neigher and Spencer Proffer. With their help and also with the help of Jeff Paris, VIXEN did a great debut album. It went straight into the charts and so did "Edge of a broken heart". Two other singles followed; "Cryin'" (written by Gregg Trip and Jeff Paris) and "Love made me" (written by John Keller, Marci Levy and Michael Caruso). Both were major hits. VIXEN started touring around the world. On stage they got help from an old friend of the band, Michael Alemania, on keyboards. They toured with The Scorpions, Bad Company, Ozzy Osbourne, etc and in 1989 they played at the Milton Keynes Festival with Bon Jovi and a few other huge names. A live concert in Düsseldorf (Germany) was broadcasted on television on January 5, 1989 and the band did a lot of shows during that time. In 1990 VIXEN released their second album. "Rev it up" has much more own written material (10 out of 11 songs!) and it was produced by Randy Nicklaus. The first single "How much love" is a good rock song, while the second one, the ballad "Love is a killer", shows the band from a more sensitive side. "Not a minute too soon" is the last single ever from VIXEN. In September 1990 VIXEN did a 40 minutes video, entitled "REVVED UP!". There you'll find all six video clips, from "Edge of a broken heart" to "Not a minute too soon" plus some really nice interviews with the band members. On August 11, 1990 VIXEN did an unplugged session for MTV. In 1991

after the European tour with Deep Purple (April 1991) the band split up due to management problems and musical differences.

There are rumours about a third album from VIXEN, but it never got realised, as far as I know. But if you have more information, please let me know. Also other info about the band is welcome! I'm interested in everything about the band VIXEN and their individual members. Write or send me a fax.
